

DAUGHTERS PRIMED FOR BALLOT BATTLE

Vigorous Campaigning Will Be Resumed Tomorrow After Day of Complete Truce.

factional strife will be abolished. The storylines have been marshaled their principal forces against this plank, claiming that it is inequitable, and that a good term deserves another year. In reply to this, the Guernsey forces point out that Mrs. Story herself was elected in opposition to a first-term incumbent.

Other radical steps which the platform would impose, is the strict accounting and regulation of mileage allowances, which have come to large sums under previous administration. The "square-deal" policy, elimination of all party lines, unhampered control of all elected officers, and other matters.

While the Guernsey-Story battle for the presidency of the organization will overshadow any other action of the congress, there are numerous controversies over which the women will have plenty of opportunity to pit their talents. One of these contests will be over the seating of Mrs. Will C. Barnes, the recent vice president of an official of the Forest Service. Seven years Mrs. Barnes has been elected vice president of her State. At the last Congress her right to the position was questioned, the claim being made that she no longer was an "actual resident" of Arizona. Mrs. Barnes, although living in Washington, maintains that her "actual residence" is in Arizona.

Fight on Magazine.

The magazine of the national society is another pivot around which a live contest is expected to be waged. The "magazine fight" last year saw Miss Florence Finch, of New York, chairman of the magazine committee, and Mrs. Swornstedt, of the District, leading the opposing factions.

It is not unlikely that the Union Station incident, too, may be revived on the floor of the congress tomorrow. The stern center of this inquiry will doubtless be Mrs. Charles B. Goldsborough, chairman of the D. A. R. convention transportation committee, who is charged by the Guernsey advocates of the reception booth of the organization at the station as a distributing point for Story campaign literature. The Guernsey leaders freely acknowledge that they sought to place the hands of incoming delegates literature favorable to the candidate, but they maintain they had this right if the Mrs. Goldsborough was so privileged.

When Mrs. Goldsborough complained to the station master of the activity of the Guernsey supporters, the superintendent of the station, Mr. Van Zandt, from the opposing factions their consent to desist from distributing literature of any kind.

Promises Discussion.

A document which promises to provoke lively discussion, when it is offered as parts of the innumerable of the D. A. R. is a proclamation signed by the historical general, Mrs. Mary C. Bassett, the organizing secretary general, Frances I. Mann, and the registrar general, Catherine E. Brumbaugh. These three high officials of the organization have applied "gag rule" to her administration, with the result that the report of Mrs. Bassett is not accepted by Mrs. Story. Mrs. Bassett is a member of the Guernsey campaign committee.

Tomorrow evening there will be a massing of the forces of Mrs. Story and Mrs. Guernsey. Behind the innocent fans and whispered conversations, tense verbal efforts will be made to break down the ramparts of the allies. The New Willard parlors will be the scene of the Guernsey ultimatum. From 5 until 7 o'clock the Kansas delegation, which arrived in a special train, will entertain the delegates in the Memorial Continental Hall. A musical program by the Marine Band, and a patriotic song by Mrs. Heustis, with greetings from President Wilson and addresses by Ambassadors.

Reception at Start.

The reception tomorrow night will follow the first open meeting of the congress, which will begin at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Memorial Continental Hall. A musical program by the Marine Band, and a patriotic song by Mrs. Heustis, with greetings from President Wilson and addresses by Ambassadors.

Elaine: Why, certainly dandruff can be removed absolutely and entirely by using this vegetable cream-jelly, which you can easily make at home. Get 1 ounce almond oil from your drugist and dissolve in 1/2 pint cold water and add 1 teaspoonful glycerine. Let stand over night. Apply this cream-jelly plentifully after cleansing and drying the skin. For wrinkles, rub the cream thickly upon the creases. This stimulates in a way the stunted tissues underlying the crease and after a few treatments the furrows will entirely vanish. This treatment will remove pimples, blackheads, oiliness and other complexion troubles, and leave the skin soft, clear and velvety.

Rebecca: You need not suffer with over-fatness if you will just use this simple, harmless treatment, which requires no dieting or exercise. Into 1 1/2 pints of hot water put 4 ounces parrotis. When it cools, strain, and take a tablespoonful before each meal. This treatment gradually dissolves fatty tissue, and restores the excretory lines to the figure without leaving the flesh flabby or the skin wrinkled. When the weight is satisfactorily reduced the treatment can be discontinued. Betty Dean's Beauty Book, $5.00—Adv.

PLATFORM OF CANDIDATE OPPOSING MRS. STORY

- Article I.—Elimination of all party lines.
- Article II.—One term of three years with no re-election, for all national officers, in order to prevent the distractions consequent upon a campaign for a second term.
- Article III.—All elected officers shall have complete and unhampered control of their own officers and shall be held responsible by congress for proper conduct of said office.
- Article IV.—No mileage for officers and committee chairmen.
- Article V.—Regular board meetings to be held four times a year.
- Article VI.—A committee of appeals to be elected by congress for the adjustment of otherwise unsettled differences in States or chapters, whose decision shall be final.
- Article VII.—The magazine to be restored to publication by a responsible firm.
- Article VIII.—A "fair and square deal" for every daughter.

At the point of a revolver. He will be arranged in Police Court tomorrow.

Part of the stolen property was recovered in a room in the Police Court building, where, the police say, Metcalf told them it could be found. Detective Mudd, of the sixth police precinct station, arrested the marine late yesterday afternoon. It is alleged, he had made an unsuccessful attempt to sell one of the empty suit cases. Metcalf had been absent from the Marine Barracks ten days, but no charge of desertion had been placed against him.

FOUNDERS AND PATRIOTS' Daughters to Convene

Plans for a general court of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots in Washington, May 12, the anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, were made at a preliminary conference of the national officers and State chapter presidents of the organization at the Raleigh last night.

The meeting rejected a motion that the printing of lineage books of the society be discontinued for one year in the interests of economy and that the 300 pamphlets of this nature now in issue be distributed.

As the society is purely a genealogical one it was held this would defeat its main purpose. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. William Van Zandt, the president, and was attended by many State presidents who are in Washington for the D. A. R. meeting.

Massachusetts Has Librarian Candidate

Mrs. Ralph M. Kirtland, regent of Minute Men Chapter of Boston, said today she was much surprised to hear that it was claimed that Massachusetts was unanimous for Mrs. Story. Mrs. Kirtland is before the D. A. R. congress this year with a candidate for the office of librarian general on the Guernsey ticket in Mrs. Edward B. Kellogg, regent of John Hancock Chapter of Boston.

Veteran of Vera Cruz Is Held Here as Thief

Abel Metcalf, who, as a marine, participated in the occupation of Vera Cruz, is being held by the police, charged with taking two suit cases belonging to C. L. Moore, of Ashland, Ohio, and William W. C. Brown, of Richmond, from the Union Depot, of taking a sum of money from Harry Deck, proprietor of the Capitol Hotel.

PROHIBITION FOR U. S. IS ISSUE IN CONGRESS

"Drys" Sure to Force Action on Question as Result of Their Announcement.

for the Presidential campaign opens, all our time, energy, and interest will be devoted to securing its ratification. Unless we are kept busy doing that, we will get into the political fight, involving the Presidency and the next Congress, and we are prepared to be very disagreeable."

Such is the interpretation that the politicians are placing on the threat of the anti-liquor organization; and it is giving concern to politicians of all parties. It is known that the prohibition leaders issued their statement only after a careful canvass of the national situation, and with the belief that the wave of "dry" sentiment that is spreading over the world can be caught at the crest and made to serve their purpose of forcing attention to the issue.

"The way to get the liquor question out of the way before the 1916 campaign is to get it out of the way; take it out of national affairs; put it up to the States," said a leader among the anti-liquor forces today. "That is all we ask; but we are willing to have it understood that if this much is not done, we will make ourselves felt in national matters."

This sounds like an ultimatum; and the anti-liquor people admit that they intend it to be just that. They argue that the liquor question is the most troublesome question coming to the top.

mitted to the States. We controlled a majority in the last Congress, and will be much stronger in the next. It happens to require a two-thirds vote to submit. After submission, it will take a three-fourths vote of the States to carry our proposition. We realize that that puts a big fight up to us; if the opposition can muster thirteen out of forty-eight States we are beaten. But we are willing to take the chances in a fight on this basis.

To support the resolution of submission commits no man to our proposition. We insist that the States are entitled to decide the question. That is all we ask. It is a fundamental in our system that the people are entitled to among the Constitution if they wish. All we want is to let them decide whether they want to amend it."

The ultimatum of the "dry" forces is regarded in Washington as a skillful bit of practical politics, and very well timed, from their point of view. It is generally conceded that there will be a larger proportion of the new House in favor of submission than there was of the last House; and nobody seems to doubt that the Senate will do, once the question reaches it; it will carry the resolution, unless the signs egregiously fail.

Just now, the commanding interest in everything political centers in the Presidential election. Nothing "halls up" political situation so much as the injection of the liquor question; and no issue is more dreaded by the politicians. Therefore, on the eve of a tremendously important national campaign, a threat to force this issue right into the thick of the whole business of nominating and also of electing, is calculated to arouse the utmost agitation among the managers of politics.

"That's just what we'll do," declare the prohibitionists, "unless you submit our question. Submit it, and we'll be good; we'll keep out of your national fight."

Already the question of how to deal with this issue is giving worry to leaders of both political parties.

There is a wonderful "halls up" the country ready to let this issue exercise a determining effect in a national campaign, either for nomination or election; but they dislike to experiment. Too many States have had political upheavals of the most troublesome sort by reason of letting the liquor question come to the top.

The amendment abolishing the liquor traffic will be introduced in Congress on the first day of the December session, and there will be no time to pressure for it from that time forth. It will be a game of politics all the way. "Pass this resolution, and we keep out of your Presidential fight; defeat it, and we will be busy in every State and every district in the country. That is the declaration of the organization opposed to liquor; and it is not to be denied that they are exceeding cocky at this time. They think the economic experience of the Old World, so dramatically forced upon attention by reason of the war, has forced their hand; and they intend to take advantage of the situation. It is no secret among the droughty managers that they guess the European war has brought their victory closer, in this country, by a good many years."

Newsman Retires at Age of 58; Is Wealthy

NEW YORK, April 18.—Mrs. Rebecca Karp has retired. She sold newspapers for twenty-four years at her stand in front of a pharmacy in Park Row. Her business has been turned over to her son Abraham.

The newspapers she sold every morning from midnight until 9 a. m., except on Saturdays and Sundays, brought wealth to her, according to her philosophy of life. Her husband died eighteen years ago, and she has brought up seven children and sent them through the public schools. She owns the three-story house in which she lives in Brooklyn, and the house next to it. She is fifty-eight years old.
